Mr. Fast described the goals of the study; the consulting firms involved and the areas they focused on; the development of the three project workstreams, including workstream one: soccer stadium, noting the assessment, stadium design, budget, financial pro-forma, funding, and schedule; workstream two: mixed-use development, noting the process, initial assessments, the recommended development plan, vision and program, and schedule; and workstream three: recreational sports field complex, noting the assessment, site planning, budget, and schedule; and concluded with a review of the public benefits of the Heidelberg Sports Village.
