At approximately 3:17 p.m., Peter Huffman, Director, Planning and Development Services (PDS), provided opening remarks regarding the Home in Tacoma Project proposal, and introduced Brian Boudet, Planning Manager, PDS, and Council Member McCarthy, Chair, Infrastructure, Planning, and Sustainability (IPS) Committee. Council Member McCarthy provided a report on the IPS Committee's work to date, noting the three meetings held so far, lack of consensus to move forward with the Planning Commission recommendations as presented, support for the low-scale housing changes and for some mid-scale changes, lack of consensus on mid-scale proposals, a request for feedback from the full City Council, and a definition of low-scale housing as allowing up to four unit housing developments in all residential zones.

Mr. Huffman presented the Home in Tacoma update, including an overview; IPS Committee review scope and schedule, noting major topics; and the Planning Commission's recommendations related to the Home in Tacoma Project Phase 1 vision and policy for changing housing rules. Mr. Boudet

Discussion ensued regarding appreciation for staff and IPS Committee members, implementation phasing for low-scale and mid-scale options, encouraging development along high-capacity transit corridors and bike paths, expected time frames for implementation, community concerns and the need for further communication and education, the Pierce County Buildable Lands Report, ideas to revise or expand the Multi-Family Tax Exemption program, the urgent need to move forward with policy changes and implementation, unused capacity and empty lots around the City, providing incentives for residential development, touring the City to view examples of different types of development, continued community engagement, ways to encourage density, impacts of adding housing units on availability and affordability, expectations that Tacoma's population will continue to grow, and next steps.
