COUNCIL REQUESTS/INQUIRIES

5. Planning and Development Services Director Peter Huffman forwards a memorandum with information related to the Puget Sound Energy proposed Liquefied Natural Gas facility in the Tideflats. This memorandum is largely similar to the memorandum forwarded in the January 5th Weekly Report to the City Council, with one additional section entitled "What is the State Department of Ecology's role in determining the need for a SEIS?" Minor changes have been made for readability.

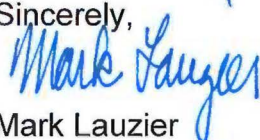

This information will be posted by the end of this week on the project web page in a "frequently asked questions" format, at www.cityoftacoma.org/lnfacilityinfo.

6. At the January 18th Government Performance and Finance Committee meeting, there was a presentation on Click! Network's rate increase proposal for 2017. NEW ROUTE TESTING

Amtrak Cascades is permanently rerouting its tracks through Tacoma, along I-5 between Lakewood, JBLM and DuPont. Testing of the new routes and signals will occur from mid-January through the end of February 2017. During testing, trains will travel at speeds up to 79 mph and come from either direction, any time, day or night. Regular service on the new route is scheduled to begin in fall 2017.

NEW SERVICE

In fall of 2017, Amtrak Cascades will begin running 14 daily passenger trains along this route, operating from 7:00 am to 10:00 pm. The trains service 18 stations between Vancouver, BC and Eugene, Oregon, including stops in Tacoma and Lacey. This additional service will help relieve highway congestion and give travelers a comfortable and convenient way to travel up and down the I-5 corridor.

SUBJECT: Puget Sound Energy Proposed LNG Facility
DATE: January 4, 2017

During recent Citizens' Forums, many speakers raised concerns and questions about the Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) facility that Puget Sound Energy (PSE) has proposed for the Tideflats. Planning and Development Services provides the following information regarding the facility, the public review history, and the current status of permits and development at the site. This information is substantially the same as that originally transmitted on January 4, 2017, with the following changes:

- A new section has been added about the Washington State Department of Ecology's role in a Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS)
- Edits have been made for readability.
- State and local code references have been relocated to a separate section.

This information is publicly available at www.cityoftacoma.org/lngfacilityinfo.

Why did the LNG project require an EIS?

With major development projects, an applicant tells the City during the Pre-Application process that they would like to obtain permits. When the State Environmental Policy Act (SEPA) Official determines that there are likely to be significant adverse impacts to one or more elements of the environment, he or she will make a "determination of significance" which means the applicant must go through an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) process. ("Elements of the Environment" are defined in State law and include both the natural environment, like plants and water quality, and the human environment, like noise and aesthetics.)

In the case of Puget Sound Energy (PSE), the City and PSE mutually agreed that an EIS was necessary. The Determination of Significance (DS) was issued based on a determination that potential impacts to public safety and traffic need the in-depth study an EIS would provide.

The Tacoma Municipal Code specifically designates Planning and Development Services as the department to issue and revoke all building permits. When a permit is applied for, or when the intent to apply is stated, the City must also ensure that the required environmental review takes place as background information for all decisions on the permits.

Why was the City of Tacoma the "SEPA Lead Agency"?

The SEPA Lead Agency, as described in the Washington Administrative Code (WAC), is the government agency that has the main responsibility for complying with SEPA's requirements. The designated lead agency is responsible for the SEPA threshold determination, and for preparing an EIS.

For certain large proposals, the Washington State Department of Ecology (ECY) is offered the opportunity to be Lead. In the case of the LNG facility, because the storage capacity exceeds one million gallons, ECY would have been the lead agency automatically. However, ECY can defer Lead Agency status. When this happens, ECY then takes on the responsibility of conferring with all interested parties to determine the most appropriate Lead.

After being provided with the full scope of the LNG project, other permitting agencies (these included other local cities, Pierce County, and other state agencies) declined Lead Agency status. ECY concluded that the City of Tacoma had the capacity to manage the EIS. All Lead Agency determinations were made official in writing on August 6, 2014.

The City is in the best position to represent local interests and factors that are unique to a development situation. The ability to represent local policy and planning values in environmental review is strengthened by the process being led by local leadership.

It is important to note that by deferring Lead Agency status to another agency, other permitting agencies do not give up their responsibility for environmental review. Each permitting agency in the State of Washington has to ensure that the environmental review for a project meets its standards and needs for its permitting process. In other words, the multiple agencies reviewing the LNG proposal had to be comfortable with adopting the City's environmental review.

These agencies were invited to comment and participate in the scoping process, the Draft EIS, and the Final EIS. If at any time other agencies determined the review did not meet their permitting requirements, they could have petitioned for Lead status. In addition, during the process of reviewing an existing EIS for additional permits by other agencies, if that agency ever determined its concerns were not addressed, they could ask for a Supplemental EIS to address those concerns.

According to the WAC, the Lead Agency may have an EIS prepared by staff, by the applicant, or by an outside consultant hired by either the applicant or the lead agency. This is also set forth in the City's environmental code. Due to the amount of time and expertise required to complete a thorough EIS, the City engaged an environmental consultant to prepare the EIS. The City conducted a request for qualification (RFQ) process, interviewed three applicant teams, and selected the final consulting team. While PSE reimbursed the City's costs for the EIS, the process at all times was managed by City staff, and other reviewing agencies.

What are the limits of an EIS?

The purpose of the Environmental Impact Statement and the related review is to figure out potential project impacts.. An EIS requires a study of multiple items that may be impacted by the proposal. These items are called "elements of the environment" and are laid out in state law. In addition, the EIS has very specific procedural requirements. An EIS must include public input and agency review while still providing some predictability and clarity for the applicant.

Washington State law allows for something called "SEPA substantive authority," which means an agency can modify, mitigate, or deny a proposal based upon its environmental impacts. Mitigation may involve almost anything, such as paying impact fees to local school districts, or changing the design of the project to avoid impacts to wetlands or other sensitive areas. Other mitigation may be required by city or county development regulations, or other local, state, or federal laws. Mitigation can also be based on information about adverse environmental impacts in the SEPA document.

However, as noted in the state law, all conditions "shall be based upon policies identified by the appropriate governmental authority and incorporated into regulations, plans, or codes which are formally designated by the agency." This means that any mitigation has to be supported by adopted codes and policies (usually in a comprehensive plan or another planning document).

An EIS is not a permit decision – approval or denial. No development can occur once a Final Environmental Impact Statement (FEIS) is issued. An FEIS is simply a background document, and individual development permits are still required. Some examples include building permits, air quality permits, stormwater discharge permits, and fire protection permits. The EIS provides information that would allow development permits to be approved, approved with conditions, or denied.

Multiple agencies, including the City, will review a development proposal for compliance with all regulations, in addition to any conditions that are required by the environmental review or by other applicable codes. The LNG proposal has several required mitigation measures (for transportation and public safety impacts). In addition, each individual permit will be (or has been) reviewed for compliance with all applicable codes and policies. A table of permitting agencies and status is included below.

What public process was used for the PSE project?

Public notice of the EIS process was provided as required by the Tacoma Municipal Code and the Washington Administrative Code. The best source for information is the SEPA fact sheet for the FEIS as well as the comments / response section of the FEIS (Chapter 4), and the distribution list (Appendix B).

Mailing/Scoping:

- The mailing list for the Determination of Significance went to approximately 385 people; it was emailed to an additional 25-30 people who were agency, community group, and neighborhood representatives. (This included the Muckleshoot and Puyallup Tribes.)
- There were 28 people who signed up at the scoping meeting on 9/24/14, but there may have been more in attendance.
- The City received five comment letters about the scope of the EIS. Three additional comment sheets were filled out at the meeting.

Mailing/DEIS:

- The Draft EIS Comment Period ran from July 7, 2015 to August 17, 2015. The Notice of the DEIS was mailed out to about 425 people on July 7, 2015, and emailed to an additional (approximately) 40 people who were agency representatives and neighborhood or community group representatives.
- A Permit Agency meeting was held July 9, 2015
- The public meeting on the DEIS (July 16, 2015) had about 29 people sign in. (More people may have been there.)
- The City received about 25 letters commenting on the DEIS. At the meeting, 4 people filled out comment sheets.

Mailing/EIS:

- The Notice of the FEIS was mailed October 26, 2015
- A comment letter (Citizens for a Healthy Bay) was omitted, and the re-issued FEIS was sent out by notice on November 9, 2015
- The notice of the FEIS availability was mailed (both times) to about 500 people and emailed to about 60 more people.
- The Notice of Action (when the City issued the demolition permit) was mailed November 19, and published in the paper three times (the November 19th, the 23rd and 30th). Issuance of the demolition permit started the EIS appeal period, which ended on December 21, 2015

- The shoreline permit was issued along with the initial demolition permits.

Other Outreach:

- Two meetings were held specifically with the NE Tacoma Neighborhood Council; staff attended additional meetings at which the project was discussed.
- Two meetings (and multiple conversations) were held with all the permitting agencies including the Coast Guard, Corps of Engineers, Ecology, Fish & Wildlife, Fire, etc.
- A staff meeting and a government-to-government consultation were held with the Puyallup Tribal Council.
- The News Tribune was copied on all notices and ran two semi-related stories in 2014.

What would trigger a Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS)?

The Washington Administrative Code (WAC) sets forth the types of Environmental Impact Statements. The WAC says an SEIS: "shall be prepared as an addition to either a draft or final statement if: (a) There are substantial changes to a proposal so that the proposal is likely to have significant adverse environmental impacts; or (b) There is significant new information indicating, or on, a proposal's probable significant adverse environmental impacts."

Preparation rules for an SEIS are in the WAC, which states "an SEIS shall be prepared in the same way as a draft and final EIS (WAC 197-11-400 to 197-11-600), except that scoping is optional. The SEIS should not include analysis of actions, alternatives, or impacts that is in the previously prepared EIS." This means the scope of an SEIS would be limited to only a review of the new information or the changes in the proposal.

To date, the only changes from the LNG proposal set forth in the FEIS have been reductions in scope and impacts; thus there is not cause to believe that a reduced-scale project would have additional significant adverse impacts. To date, no new information has been discovered which would alter the original analyses of the Elements of the Environment as contained in the FEIS.

It should be noted that, under Washington law, the adequacy of an EIS is measured by the "rule of reason," which requires a reasonably thorough discussion of the significant aspects of the likely environmental consequences of a proposed project. SEPA does not require analysis of every possible impact, nor does it require inclusion of specific remedies for all identified environmental impacts. An EIS is intended to be an aid to the decision making process; not to be a collection of every possible effect or alternative to a proposed project.

What is the State Department of Ecology's role in determining the need for an SEIS?

As the state agency with ultimate authority over most environmental things, the Department of Ecology ("Ecology" or "ECY") has the ability to comment on Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) processes even where it has not taken the role of the SEPA lead agency. Ecology did, in fact, review the Puget Sound Energy EIS before it was finalized. Ecology made a number of comments on the Draft EIS for the PSE project. The City addressed these comments in the Final EIS, and in issuing the shoreline permit. Ecology was reviewing the DEIS from two perspectives: (1) adequacy for the shoreline permit (where Ecology is the ultimate authority over permitting); and (2) as a direct permitting agency for various other permits on the project.

The FEIS is a foundational document in the review and issuance of these later state permits, the same as with the shoreline permit. Ecology voiced no concerns with the FEIS as issued. City staff has had multiple, recent conversations with Ecology staff inquiring as to whether the agency finds anything in the EIS inadequate, and in light of PSE's revisions to the scope of its project. The consistent answer from Ecology has been "no."

The Department of Ecology has the authority to require the City to conduct additional environmental review (even a Supplemental EIS) if Ecology finds such to be necessary. To date, Ecology has not done so. Two of the follow-on permits for the project, over which ECY has review and granting authority—the "401 Water Quality Certification" and the "Coastal Zone Consistency Determination"—are currently on appeal. Ecology has not found it necessary to either conduct its own additional environmental review, or order that the City, as SEPA lead, do so in order to defend these appeals.

The bottom line is that the City has consulted with Ecology staff whether Ecology thinks a Supplemental EIS is required for the project, and the answer has been "no."

Doesn't the after-the-fact release of safety modeling information compel an SEIS?

The timing of the release of information does not affect the validity of either the FEIS or the permit review -- the FEIS did include a review of the siting study and hazard analysis by a third party with expertise in LNG; this review was referenced in the EIS. The siting study could have been requested at that time and the currently pending questions addressed while the EIS was still pending, but no request was made at that time.

Every permit will still be required to meet all regulations and standards of the City and all other agencies with a thorough review by our own staff as well as expert consultants as needed (along with the other State and Federal permitting agencies).

What about bunkering?

There has been some confusion caused by the term "bunkering" as it has been used in multiple contexts. The term applies in general to any ship fueling at a dock (including TOTE ships), but is also used to describe barges which would fill and then go to another site to fuel ships (as in bunkering barges). As a result, there appears to have been some confusion regarding the use of the term "bunkering" in relation to recent conveyances of easements leading to a misunderstanding about PSE's ability to move elements of the project previously proposed on the Hylebos Waterway to the Blair.

Despite the language of the easement, such a relocation is not allowed under the shoreline permit. Any relocation would involve additional shoreline permitting, environmental assessment, and public review.

The FEIS analyzed two bunkering barges calling in the Hylebos. Relocation to the Blair might benefit from analysis of impacts due to the move, or any other change in impacts from the relocation, but no such relocation is taking place.

Finally, a 2015 article about TOTE's purchase of a bunkering barge has created confusion. That barge has been deployed to Jacksonville, Florida and will not be used in Tacoma. Further, the purpose of the barge would have been to take fuel to TOTE's ships and fuel them from the water, and not to take fuel from TOTE's site to other locations. Had the barge deployed to Tacoma, it would have filled with LNG in British Columbia and traveled to Tacoma to fuel TOTE ships.

What about trucking?

The PSE site is located on the east side of Alexander, bordering the Hylebos Waterway. The EIS analyzed the environmental impacts of the facility. This includes an LNG storage tank, the liquefaction facility (refrigerants propane, isopentane, and ethylene), the cryogenic pipeline and loading facility for TOTE, and two truck loading bays on the west side of the facility.

Under the project as proposed, up to two tanker trucks per day would arrive empty at the Tacoma LNG Facility and leave carrying LNG to market, generally to a local user. These would service the existing peak-shaving facility in Gig Harbor, as well as other users. PSE has indicated no intent to increase trucking beyond the two trips a day analyzed in the FEIS; should trucking increase, the City would analyze the proposed increase to determine whether it requires additional review.

The present proposal also includes an extension of the existing natural gas distribution infrastructure with a new limit station and gate station in Pierce County, and approximately five miles of new pipeline in two segments (Pierce County, Fife, and Tacoma).

Current Status

What does PSE have land use entitlements for (i.e., what do they have in their shoreline permit and what has been analyzed in the FEIS)?

Shoreline: PSE has permission through a Shoreline Substantial Development Permit (SSDP) to request development permits for one loading arm and loading platform at the TOTE site. This includes a cryogenic pipe from their liquefaction facility, a fueling arm, and the required water-side facility for the fueling arm (including containment). The current shoreline permit on the Hylebos waterway, as reduced from what was originally proposed, is limited to stormwater outfall repair and improvements as well as demolition of the deck on the existing pier, shoreline vegetation, some grading/graveling, and security fencing.

According to PSE and TOTE, the configuration of the fueling arm is unique to the TOTE ships, and a conventional bunker barge could not be fueled using this infrastructure. Further, the TOTE site does not have moorage facilities or shoreline permit approval for construction to accommodate a bunker barge.

The City has specifically asked PSE to discuss what further permitting would be needed to accommodate bunker barging at the site. Without knowing what kind of vessels would propose to use the site, the permitting path cannot be determined. However, it is recognized by all parties that additional shoreline permitting and public review, as well as additional review by the Coast Guard (which has authority over vessels) would be required.

The Shoreline Hearings Board (SHB) upheld the City's permitting decision following a week-long hearing in May of 2016. This SHB decision was appealed by the Puyallup Tribe on August 16, 2016. The next hearing for the Shoreline Permit will be set sometime in 2017. Under state law, unless the petitioner obtains a stay while the appeal is pending, the permit applicant is entitled to rely on the last decision — in this case the decision of the SHB upholding the City's decision. (A "stay" means to stop something temporarily through a court order.) What that means is that, even though there is an additional appeal pending, PSE can proceed with its project under the SSDP, but would do so at the risk of later reversal in the pending appeal. At this time, there is no stay in place, nor is there any request for a stay pending decision by the court.

Upland – PSE Site: This is the site on the east side of Alexander, neighboring the Hylebos Waterway. The EIS analyzed the environmental impacts of the liquefaction facility. This includes an LNG storage tank, the liquefaction facility (refrigerants propane, isopentane, and ethylene), the cryogenic pipeline and loading facility for TOTE, and two truck loading bays on the west side of the facility. Up to two tanker trucks per day would arrive empty at the Tacoma LNG Facility and leave carrying LNG to market, generally to a local user. (The EIS also analyzed a bunkering facility in the Hylebos, which has since been removed from the proposal.)

Other Activities: The proposal also includes extension of the existing natural gas distribution infrastructure with a new limit station and gate station in Pierce County, and approximately five miles of new pipeline (12"-16" diameter) in two segments (Pierce County, Fife, and Tacoma).

Current permitting: The following table shows the current status of development permits at the site. PSE has begun demolition of structures, utility and ground improvements, and tenant improvements to one building at the site. PSE has yet to apply for permits for the development of the LNG facility. These permits are expected to consist of one or more foundation and trenching permits as well as the building permit for the tank itself. All permits may be viewed at aca.accela.com/tacoma/ by entering the permit number in the search field.

MEMORANDUM

TO: William A. Gaines, Director of Utilities/CEO
FROM: Tenzin Gyaltsen, Click! General Manager
DATE: January 26, 2017
RE: Data request related to Click! Network Cable TV Rates Presentation

On January 18, 2017, the Government Performance and Finance Committee received staff's presentation on Click! Network's rate increase proposal for 2017 and recommendation to forward the item to the City Council for its consideration and approval. At that meeting, the Committee asked several questions and staff responded to those questions while at the podium. The Committee also requested information on Comcast's rates outside Tacoma and comparison of such rates to Click!'s rates, and wage adjustment data for represented and non-represented employees of Click! for the past 5 years. Staff has gathered the information requested and the data accompanies this cover memo.

Regarding Comcast's rates versus Click!'s rates, Exhibits A and B are Comcast's most recent price sheets filed with the local franchising authorities for its services both inside and outside Tacoma, and Exhibit C and D are Comcast's current web offers. Exhibits E and F are summaries of the data provided in Exhibits A, B, C and D. Upon analysis of this data, the following observations were made:

(1) As shown in Exhibit E Section 1 pages 1 – 3, Comcast's prices for web offers for a' la carte service and packages are essentially identical for both inside and outside Tacoma indicating that Comcast customers in Tacoma may not be enjoying any added value.

(2) As shown in Exhibit F Section 1 pages 1 and 2, Comcast's prices for new double, triple, quad and Latino packages are essentially identical for both inside and outside Tacoma indicating that Comcast customers in Tacoma may not be enjoying any added value.

(3) It has become difficult to make price comparisons considering that a majority of Comcast's customers purchase a "bundled" service (cable television (CATV) and internet together), which Click! does not presently offer.

(4) As shown in Exhibit E page 2, the Comcast double play bundles could not be compared to a "pseudo-bundle" composed of Click! CATV plus internet service, as the internet speeds included in the Comcast bundles began at 25 Mbps versus the 20 Mbps in the Click! "pseudo-bundle."

(5) As shown in Exhibit E page 1 Section 2, Comcast's inside Tacoma CATV service a' la carte rates are lower than Comcast's outside Tacoma rates indicating some benefit to Comcast's a' la carte customers in Tacoma.

(6) As shown in Exhibit E page 1 Section 4, Click!'s current a' la carte CATV service rates are lower than Comcast's current a' la carte rates in the range of 15% to 30%, depending on level of service, satisfying policy direction to keep CATV service rates lower than market.

(7) As shown in Exhibit E page 1 Section 5, Click!'s proposed a' la carte CATV service rates are expected to be lower than Comcast's current a' la carte CATV service rates in the range of 5% to 20%, depending on the level of service, which continues to satisfy policy direction to keep CATV service rates lower than market.

Wage adjustment data for represented and non-represented employees of Click! over the past seven years has been prepared by the HR Department and is attached as Exhibit G. These data indicate that cumulatively over the seven year period, represented employees have received larger increases than non-represented employees. It should be noted that the non-represented employees did not see increases for 2010, 2011, 2012 or 2013, due to the salary freeze put in place during the City's General Fund budget difficulties. Local 483 and Local 120 units took zero wage increases in 2011 and 2012, but certain units received double digit increases in 2010 and 2013. It should also be noted that the City operates on a market-based compensation philosophy. Although comparable market data can be difficult to obtain from private-sector telecom operators, what is available generally shows that represented Click! employees are already compensated at or above market levels. Typically the City manages this by awarding zero or small increases until market wages catch up (red-lining). These two factors (prior salary freeze, market comparables) led to the relatively larger increases for certain individual non-represented classifications that were mentioned by Council members during the Committee meeting.
