Briefing Items

1. 20-0703 Community Safety

At approximately 12:05 p.m., City Manager Elizabeth Pauli made opening remarks on 2021-2022 budget items related to community safety.

Katie Johnston, Budget Officer, Finance, introduced Jacques Colon, Tacoma 2025 Strategic Manager, Media and Communications Office, and Reid Bennion, Lead Budget Analyst, Finance.

Mr. Colon provided an overview of the Council priority area, which focuses on increasing positive public perception of safety and overall quality of life. Mr. Bennion reviewed the results of community outreach. Ms. Johnston reviewed the City's key roles, as identified by staff, in advancing community safety, and community safety program expenses and funding in the 2021-2022 budget.

City Manager Pauli presented on the City's transformation efforts, completed and ongoing policing transformation efforts, and proposed budget items related to community safety transformation.

Don Ramsdell, Chief, Tacoma Police Department, reviewed the police services budget, noting reductions, mitigations, and enhancements; transformation in policing; and emergency response services and police services.

Tory Green, Chief, Tacoma Fire Department, reviewed the fire and medical services budget, noting reductions, mitigations, and enhancements; the Basic Life Support transport services proposal; the Ground Emergency Medical Transportation (GEMT) program; call volume and community need; the utility of a firefighter; the Emergency Medical Services levy; the GEMT implementation timeline; and the Behavioral Health Response unit.

Linda Stewart, Director, Neighborhood and Community Services (NCS), reviewed the NCS budget related to public safety, noting reductions, mitigations, and enhancements; and services related to safe housing and neighborhoods.

Kurtis Kingsolver, Director, Public Works, reviewed the Public Works budget related to public safety, noting reductions, mitigations, and enhancements; and infrastructure safety for motorists, pedestrians, and cyclists.

Discussion ensued regarding outreach methods and scope, police presence in communities, how responses to public safety calls will be coordinated, proposed staffing levels and status of the staffing study, behavioral health unit services, graffiti removal service levels and “highest need” areas, site reclamation, fire and life support services and equipment, potential impacts of service changes and reductions, equity, police hiring reductions and vacancies, minimizing service disruptions, and the traffic calming program.

The study session recessed at 2:12 p.m.

The study session reconvened at 2:22 p.m.

Discussion continued regarding fire engine reductions and response times; time frame for implementing service changes; how public safety calls will be handled during the transition; School Resource Officers; pothole repair and road paving; the budget process; reviewing net gains and losses; previous budget cuts and recovery; community policing; red light cameras; GEMT funding, implementation, and use in other states; public input on the police budget; methods for Council to provide feedback; and next steps.
